- * * A VERY INTERESTING, FINELY WRITTEN AND WELL DECORATED HEBREW BIBLE OF THE XV CENTURY, brought from Constantinople by the late Chief Rabbi Dr. Louis Loewe in 1846. This Bible is written in exactly the same style as that in the Library of Raphael Ferkhi at Damascus. The text, which has the diacritical and musical accents, is in double columns, except in such places as require a different style in Synagogue scrolls. The chapters and verses are separated, but there is no difference in the size of the commencing letter of each book. The absence of any distinguishing letter is generally regarded as a proof of antiquity. It contains in the margins the Massora Godola, and Massora Ketana, the Kete and Ketib, the changes of letters and words, the large and small letters, the codices of Ben Asher and Ben Napthali, and other grammatical notes. The order of the books is peculiar, being as follows: Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges, Samuel, Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, the Twelve Minor Prophets: followed by Chronicles, Psalms, Job, Proverbs, Ruth, Song of Songs, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, Esther, Daniel, Ezra and Nehemiah. The illuminations on many pages in gold, red and blue, and the margins throughout the MS. have every variety of fanciful form, though chiefly flowers and geometrical devices, the words forming these designs being minute but distinctly legible. On the last page the scribe says he finished the writing on Tuesday, the 10th Tamuz 5256 (= 1496), but his name has been erased, otherwise the MS. is in A PERFECT STATE OF PRESERVATION.

M. W. TURNER HIMSELF, when a boy, living at Brentford, original calf, broken (wants the title)* n. d. (1785)

* * The MS. Family Register of the various branches of the Lees Family [1755-1821], two printed advertisements relative to passing over the business of Charles Child to John Lees, Tallow Chandler, and a number of interesting cuttings and advertisements, etc. accompany this most valuable volume.

“Joseph Mallord William Turner (born 23 April, 1775, died Dec. 19, 1851), Son of William Turner, barber, of Maiden Lane, who married in 1773, Mary Marshall; she had a brother, who was a butcher at Brentford, and a sister who married a curate at Islington, named Harpur. She is said to have been related to the Marshalls of Nottingham. When about nine years of age Turner went to a school at Brentford, kept by John White, here, besides ornamenting walls and copybooks, with cocks, hens, etc. he coloured about 140 engravings in ‘Boswell’s Antiquities of England and Wales,’ with remarkable cleverness, for John Lees, foreman of the distillery at Brentford, for about fourpence a plate, and it is probable that even before this time, he made drawings (some if not all of them, copies of engravings coloured) which were sold at his father’s shop for one or more shillings a piece. His father’s shop was frequented by many artists, including Thomas Stothard, and his father finally determined that he was to be an artist. He was with Humphry Repton, the landscape gardener, at Romford, he was also employed in colouring prints for John R. Smith, made drawings for the ‘Copperplate Magazine.’ Was sent in 1786 to the Soho Academy. At a very early age he sketched a coat of arms from a set of buttons, belonging to a Mr. Tomkison, a jeweller, Southampton Street, Covent Garden.” *Extract from an article on J. M. W. It extends from the time of Edward I to 1636, and is far from being a mere dry Family Pedigree, but concerned also with the doings of its chief members and their surroundings for 400 years. One of the most interesting portions is that which deals with Richard Taverner of Woodeaton, the "Recogniser" of "Rogers's" Bible, published in 1539, and "Clerk of the Signet" to Henry VIII under Thomas Lord Cromwell. There is an account of a journey to Norfolk made by the writer in 1604 on a sort of Family "Visitation." There are also many extracts from old Grants and Letters Patent from various Sovereigns to members of the family; Lives of Peter Taverner and Fra. Dowera his wife, monument of John Taverner of Gresham College, etc.
